#	RESPONSES	DATE
1	Likely not physically back to work until after the end of the current EO. Likely not even in the office immediately at that point.	5/11/2020 9:51 AM
2	My company (utility) is considered an essential service under the order but my role within the company has been remote since the middle of March.	5/11/2020 9:22 AM
3	My wife [REDACTED] - is a critical infrastructure worker.	5/10/2020 7:48 PM
4	I am currently on maternity leave and wouldn't need care for my son [REDACTED] until July 1.	5/8/2020 7:24 PM
5	One of the parents in this family is in several "high-risk" buckets and it'll likely be awhile before it's safe for her to resume work/life normally.	5/8/2020 4:41 PM
6	I work for the Michigan Legislature which is exempt from the EOs. They have the ability to call their staff back to work at any time. I am currently working remotely but it is possible I will be called back before May 28. My husband works for the judicial branch which is also exempt. If we are called back we would love to bring [REDACTED] back to daycare! [REDACTED]	5/8/2020 2:37 PM
7	While one of us is deemed essential and still going to work, the other is unemployed. We can thus still provide child care at home and do not feel our situation would qualify as requiring child care for a critical worker. We would not attempt to attend while a stay at home order is still in place.	5/8/2020 2:23 PM
8	N/A	5/8/2020 2:18 PM
9	My wife [REDACTED] teaches at EC3. If you're open then [REDACTED] will be there	5/8/2020 2:08 PM
10	Hello! It is likely that we would send [REDACTED] (Tigers) and [REDACTED] (Ladybugs) back to EC3 when the stay at home order is lifted.	5/8/2020 2:08 PM
11	I'll let [REDACTED] go back to daycare beginning in June at the earliest	5/8/2020 2:00 PM
12	I work for state government. While my work has been deemed "essential to critical infrastructure viability," I am able to work from home full time. My family has been assisting with child care and is prepared to do so for as long as necessary.	5/8/2020 1:46 PM
13	N/a	5/8/2020 1:44 PM
14	Idk if my work is essential, but we don't need childcare before 5/28.	5/8/2020 1:43 PM
15	We don't have a need and wouldn't be bring our child back before May 28.	5/8/2020 1:43 PM
16	When daycare does reopen I have concerns about my child being in a room with others who are in the homes of essential personnel. Those under three will not be wearing masks, but if masks are essential for staff why is it safe for my child to go back and be exposed to others? I am high risk due to pregnancy and my child can not be exposed to COVID-19.	5/8/2020 1:43 PM
17	I appreciate what you are doing to keep the kiddos safe and healthy.	5/8/2020 1:40 PM
